The Sky Tells a Story: Corvus the Crow <http://www.rasnz.org.nz/Stars/Corvus.htm#chart>
<http://constellationsofwords.com/Constellations/Corvus.html>

To the West, Venus dominates the twilight until well into Fall. Mars is overhead and still conspicuously bright and red, but fading fast as the Earth leaves it behind. Saturn is the brightest object in the Southeast as darkness falls.

Overhead, the Big Dipper rides high. Scouts know to take its leading pointers north to Polaris, the North Star. If you drop South from the bowl of the Big Dipper, Leo the Lion rides high. The Egyptian Sphinx is based on the shape of this constellation. Saturn lies just SE of a triangle of stars that mark Leo's tail this year.

Taking the arc in the Dipper's handle, "arc" it SE to bright orange Arcturus, the brightest star of Spring. Just east of Arcturus is Corona Borealis, the "northern crown", a shapley Coronet that Miss America would gladly don, and one of few constellations that look like their name! The bright star in the crown's center is Gemma, the Gem Star. Then "spike" South to Spica, the hot blue star in Virgo, then "curve" to Corvus the Crow, a four sided grouping.
